Thank you, Dave. Paul Blackburn sent some of it over to Greg May, who has been slow to respond. If you know anyone in that office I'd welcome any push you might be willing to exert. c

Chuck -

My apologies for not following up sooner, [REDACTED] You may have already dealt with this, and if so please ignore.

I read through the China portion of the Clinton manuscript. Except for one or two short passage about actions inside US Embassy Beijing, I thought the manuscript posed no classification problems. I am happy to discuss further or to send the China Desk director a brief note alerting him that we have seen the manuscript and cleared with those excisions. I do not think there is a need for the Desk to review unless the Director feels it necessary.

Behar –

I do not currently have access to my classified system so I don't know if you have sent me anything on that system. Once I get onto the classified, I can send the China Desk an email on the situation if that would be helpful.

Just let me know.

Chuck –

I think that leaves us in a good place on the substance. Happy to stand down.
